Masterful Deceptions of D-Day

Fri 5/26 - 1:00-2:00pm

This speech is more entertaining than any spy novel you will ever read, and it has the advantage of being TRUE. The Allies went to great lengths to convince the Germans that they were going to attack Normandy miles away from where the actual attack occurred. Their clever deceptions are credited with saving 2 million Allied lives. Much of what will be discussed remained classified for decades. Actual film footage of some of the events will accompany this lecture.

John Brock Art Alcove

Our featured artist for May is Gina Munoz-Bryant from Clearwater. Through her intricate collage compositions inspired by art, literature, and folklore, she allows her modern audience to reengage with classic works in a relevant way.
